And this might have something to do with me using the Author as Sender Module, but...

User A made a post.

User B clicked the Report link on User A's post.

The email sent to me appears to have come from User A in the From: field, although the system email address is the one used.

It's not really a big deal, except that at first I thought someone was reporting their own post, which had me thinking they must be pretty stupid :-)
