Module: Custom Language Database

Module: Custom Language Database

This module allows you to edit the default language variables and add your own without having to edit the language files. This allows for quick changes and also protects your custom language variables during Phorum upgrades as the language files are overwritten. You can edit and add variables for every language you have installed.

While it is possible to edit the mail subject and message variables with this module, I would recommend that you download Maurice Makaay's Customize Mail Messages module as it has a much better interface for editing those variables. In fact, the email_user_start hook function used in this module was taken, with some modification, from Maurice's module.

If you have any questions, problems, or feature requests, please let me know.

Re: Module: Custom Language Database

Hello,

I use this module with Phorum 5.2.13 and I continue to get this message:
